

 Libia → Italy

-  Favourite dish: dates and bsis
-  Superpower: Dad taught you to build houses
-  You know 4 languages: Yoruba, English, Arabic and Italian

 Romania → Poland

-  Favourite dish: broth
-  Superpower: you can multiply and divide using your fingers
-  You know 4 languages: Romanian, Romani, Polish and French

 Uzbekistan → Poland

-  Favourite dish: shakarab (tomato, cucumber and onion salad)
-  Superpower: you design clothes
-  You know 4 languages: Uzbek, English, Polish and Russian

 Chechnya → Poland

-  Favourite dish: pancakes of all kinds
-  Superpower: you are a great footballer
-  You know 3 languages: Chechen, Russian and Polish

FAMILY STORY

Your family decided to migrate from Romania 8 years ago, so you don't know that country so well. You remember some Romanian. At home you speak the Romani language. You speak a bit of French, which your uncle taught you and, of course, Polish, though sometimes you come across a word which you don't understand. You ask your friends then, but they laugh at you. Or sometimes they laugh at your family and the conditions you live in. You don't like that and try to talk back. However, there are a lot of kids you like. You don't always know how to tell them that or how to become their friend.

You like spending your free time playing some music and singing with your family.

FAMILY STORY

Your family comes from Nigeria, but your parents met, found jobs and friends in Libya where you and your sibling were born. When the war in Libya broke out, you were scared about your lives. You couldn't go back to Nigeria: the southern border was closed. The friends of your parents advised them to pay the smugglers for arranging a passage to Italy. You took only basic things... Unfortunately, the boat was too small and there were too many people in it, so you had to leave your bags on the beach. When you already lost hope, you heard the sound of a chopper and Italian guards took you to the Island of Lampedusa. Then you headed to Naples, where you could stay with your aunt. You don't have IDs and haven't received refugees' status yet, but after a few months wait there, you could finally go to school. Your dad is considering job search in Germany. For the time being you are learning Italian and helping your aunt in her bar.

FAMILY STORY

During the war in Chechnya your mum, worrying about your lives, escaped to Poland with you. First 1,5 years had been spent in the centre for refugees, where you went to school and learnt some Polish.

Your mum met your stepfather there. They rented a flat in Gdańsk together. Your mum found a job, but your stepfather has trouble learning a language and fitting in. You went to school and met new friends. Sometimes your friends' questions annoy you, as they know nothing about your culture and difficult history. Also studying at school is not so easy - the teachers use a lot of difficult words and don't explain what they mean.

FAMILY STORY

Your great grandmother and her entire family were sent to Uzbekistan in 1940 mandatorily. Your family have always cherished their Polish culture. Your parents had been waiting more than ten years for permission to come back to Poland. When you finally received it, your parents had to sell all their possessions and leave everything behind. You came to Poland full of hope and sure you've made the right decision. Your new home was awaiting. Now you're focusing on learning Polish, because you still don't understand everything in this language. you feel Polish and are annoyed when people say „ruscy” (Russians, with disregard) just because your pronunciation is a bit different than theirs.